Won on the Reach, Too.

When the Vigilant turned the flag at the when the vigilant turned the high at the end of the second leg she was fully two miles in advance. Having rounded that mark, then came another leg, on which the cutter was supposed to be much the better boat. The wind was pretty nearly abeam, possibly half a point forward of it, and sheets were hauled aft-away. It was a pretty good specimen of a reach, and yet, here again, the light draughted boat "knocked the spots" off the other craft. The "Roocked the spots" off the other craft. The race over the third leg is as easily described as was the second. There is but one thing to say about it—the Virilaut continued to increase her lead from the time she began the leg until the finish line. When the winner did finally go over the line from which she had started the very three rilice along. had started she was three miles ahead. She had made on an average just about equally a gain of a mile on each of the three legs. It was an ample test, as has been told, on each of three points-windward work, running

Best of English Boats.

It is generally admitted that the Valkyrie is the best boat that England over sent over to win America's cup. She met one, how-ever, that is so far her superior that her hitherto admirers all say there can be no doubt that the Vigilant will win three straight races, and therefore the match. It still remains, however, a question as to which of the loats is the more worthy in a half gale and a very heavy sea; for instance, in a wind that will allow neither to carry a topsail. The cutter cranks (and a handful of them are still to be found) continue to claim that their boat can "do up" the Vigi-laut in a hard blow, and, therefore, is more useful as a yacht for the purpose of pleasure in cruising and for safety than the mere racing machine that the Vigliant is. The American boat supporters meet this asser-tion with the fact that the more breeze which blow the further astern did the Vigi-lant leave the Valkyrie today.

Won by Over Ten Minutes, The official time of the yachts was:

Virilant 11:25:00 2:30:01 3:25:01 3:25:0 Valkyrie, 11:25:00 3:02:24 3:37:24 3:35:3 Thus the Vigilant beat the Valkyrie by twelve minutes twenty-three seconds; on elapsed time and after taking off the one minute and forty-eight seconds time allow-ance by ten minutes and thirty-five seconds. The regatta club of the New York Vacht club also say that the Vigilant crossed the starting line two seconds ahead of the Valkyrie, and they ought to know best. This would reduce the victory of the Vigilant cy two seconds in actual time, but it does not count, as the yacht had equal chances to start away at the gun signal at 11:25. Gains of the Vigilant.

The gains of the Vigilant are officially reported to be: Four minutes and forty-five seconds in first leg, four minutes and twelve seconds in the second, and three minutes and twenty-six seconds in the third. three minutes The first leg of the course was southwest o south by windward; the second, half south in the run, and the third north northwest in the reaching home.

An Associated press reporter saw Captain Cranfield on the Valkyrie when the English yacht came to anchor off Bay Ridge after she was towed up from the Sandy Hook What kind of a day was it, captain?" was Captain Cranfield Surprised.

"It was not a bad day," replied the captain. "We had a good, fair brenze, and not too much of it. I must say we are much disappointed. I thought, after the race on Saturday, that we should do better on the triangular course than on that to windward and leeward. Instead of that she beat us on the wind and off it, and when the wind freshened and I thought we should eatch her, she walked away from us. When we had gone about five miles I thought we should have passed her, but was very much surprised that from that time to the end she gained on us. I expect that was on account of her centerboard—my idea, I mean. She probably had not got it down to suit her." "Hasn't your knowledge of centerboard as compared with the keel convinced the American plan is the better?" "I will not admit that yet," answered the Scotch captain. "We can yet show you some other experiments."

Owner Iselin Pleased.

We held to windward in order to avoid the Valkyrie's back drift. As soon as we got the position we wanted," said Mr. Iselin, "we let her go, and she went ahead. I think today's race is conclusive in every way that the Valkyrie was outsailed. What more is there to say! The parder it blow the more we gained. The excursion boats, I might add, did not interfere with us, and I cannot see how they bothered the Valkyrie."

The American yacht's head spar was strained during the race and a new one will be substituted. As a result of this Wednesday's race may be put off until Thursday The decision in this matter will not be known until tomorrow afternoon. Lord Dunrayen left the Valkyrie on the tug Plover as soon as she came to her Bay Ridge moorings and dined out with a private party tonight.

FORTY-TWO YEARS AGO.

First Race for the America's Cup and the American's Victory.

The first race for the cup, now known as the America's cup, was sailed around the Isle of Wight on August 23, 1851, says the Philadelphia Press. Of the yachts that sailed the seas in those days the gallant old America, full of years and honors, is probably the only one now in commission. The Royal Yacht Squadron had offered a cup open to competition by yachts of all nations. The America was lying at Cowes, and her owners were anxious to get a match race with a representative British yacht. Commodore Stevens entered the America in this open race. There were six schooners, one a three-master of 300 tons, and eight cutters in the race. The America was the last yacht to get off. She ran wing and wing, her to alsual out on one side and her foresail out on the other, and very soon had sailed grandly through the fleet reaching the schooner Beatrice and the cutters Aurora, Volunte and Arrow, which were leading. Finally the America, by very stillful dodging, managed to get into the lead.

The Yankee boat, with the wind free, had shown aspeciority over the English vessuls. And when it came to windward work she proved that she was equally superior. She worked to windward so speedly that by the time the point was reached there was not a yacht in sight from her decks. The wind now died down and a strong head tide was encountered, against strong head tide was encountered, against which the America made little headway. This gave the fleet, which had not yet caught the full strength of the tide, a chance to creep up on her. The little cutter Aurora and the cutter Arrow nearly caught Aurora and the cutter Arrow nearly caught up with the America, but the rest of the fleet were miles astern. At St. Catherine's the Arrow went aground and was out of the Face, but the little Aurora clung to the America admirably. The wind now freshened and again the America drew away rapidly from her plucky little rival. After getting by St. Catherine's the America had a leading wind, and easing off her sheets tore through wind, and easing off her sheets tore through the water in magnificent style and swept toward Cowes, a remarkable winner. The defeated English yachts were two days altogether in getting into port. The dismay of the English yachtsmen and all Great Britain at the terrible defeat given by the black Yankee is almost a matter of international history. Commodore Stevens had tried before the big race for a match very hard, and had posted in the Royal Squadron's castle a challenge to sail against any yacht for from 1,000 to 10,000 guineas, but the English were afraid of the Yankee from his first appearance, and the challenge was never accepted.

SHOWED THE WHITE FEATHER.

Frank Gaston Laid Down When He Met O'Donnell in the Ring. Slovx City, Oct. 9.—The fight, if by courtesy it may be called such, between Billy O'Donnell and Frank Gaston, the Texas featherweight, occurred yesterday. Up to the time the men entered the ring it seemed to give promise of being one of the hardest battles ever fought here, but it turned out to be a dismal flunk.

The fiasco occurred on the Nebraska side of the river about two miles below the Omaha bridge. The ring was pitched on a plateau a little back from the river. After a wait of an hour the men put in an appearance, Gaston with Joe Clark and Dan Daly behind him and O'Donnell with Patsy Mag-ner and John Beecham in his corner. Lew Hibben was announced as referee, and in stemning into the ring beauty tepping into the ring he announced that, if possible, he proposed to make the men fight. It was evident from this remark of Mr. Hiben that he was a trifle skeptical as to the intent of the principals.

In the first round O'Dennell led off by riving Gaston a staggering right hand smast in the ribs, and drove him to the ropes with a punch in the neck, a mouth jab, another smash on his wind, a left swing on the neck and a punch on the jaw. Gaston swung victously at O'Donnell, but never reached viciously at O'Donnell, but never reached him, O'Donnell always getting away orducking. In the second O'Donnell got his antagonist's mouth to bleeding and kept going for it. He landed repeatedly on his wind and neck, too, getting in return only a feeble uppercut on the chin. The third round was a repetition of the second, and ended when O'Donneli knocked Gaston down in his corner with right and left blows on the jaw and neck. Caston was clearly unable to respond. and made but a feeble effort to rise. He fell back and was lifted into his chair, after being counted out.

The referee announced his decision in O'Donneli's favor, but said that if there had been much money bet he would have called it no fight, as he was well satisfied that Gas-to flunked willfully.

At the ringside Dan Daly produced $100 and offered to post it for a finish fight with Billy O'Donnell as a forfeit, the contest to be for $500 and offered to post it. for $500 a side.

Mitchell Talks Some More.

CHICAGO, Oct. 9 .- Charles Mitchell and Jim Hall, the prize fighters, arrived in Chleago today. In speaking of his fight with Corbett, Mitchell said tonight: "I have become satisfied that we can fight it out to a finish at Coney Island. There will be no interference from the authorities and the men behind the club guarantee me fair play. I have not yet made up my mind where I will train, but I will probably train near salt water. When we get into the ring there will be fighting. There will be no slew work so far as I am concerned.

Another Mark for a Quarter. SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Oct. 9.-Harry C. Tyler of the Springfield Bicycle club lowered the world's record for the quarter mile standing start to 29 2-5 today at the Hampton park track. The previous mark for the distance against time was 301-5, made by E. A. Nelson of the same club at Hartford Conn., on Labor day. The Springfield track now holds the world's records for all distances up to twenty-six miles. Tyler's trial was made without pace-makers, making the feat a remarkable one. The record was officially timed.

today, but at other times, not quite directly, but by amusing periods of laquiry or sug gestions or innueedo as having been false to the cause of silver money. The senator from Colorado voted for the miserable makeshift of 1890, which had been the destruction of silver money, while he (Voorhees) knew it would destroy silver and so stated. He was willing to go before Colorado or any of the silver the silver states and meet any of the senators from those states in joint dis-cussion and prove to their own voting 1 opu lation that they were the worst enemies of silver

Teller Declines to Meet Voorhees.

Mr. Teller, republican of Colorado, criticised Mr. Voornees for his change of views on the silver question. "I do not know what new light the senator has," said he, "I have followed him heretofore, but I will not fol-low him any more, because I do not know when he will change his mind and the influence that may change his mind may not be a ifficient to change mine." Mr. Teller said if the pending bill became a law it was the complete and utter extinguishment of siyer as a standard money all over the world. That was what the fight was for and he did not intend that the senator from Indiana nor the president should escape under cover of a pretended intention to do something for silver at a later day.

The resolution went to the calendar and the repeal bill being taken up, Mr. Cockrell, democrat, of Missouri, addressed the senate in opposition to the bill. Referring to the demonstization of silver in 1873, Mr. Cockrel asserted that Mr. Sherman knew that the bili, if passed, would demonetize silver. others had disavowed the knowledge while Mr. Sherman never had.

Redemption of Silver Certificates. The discussion having turned to the general subject of the redemption of silver certificates, a colloquy occurred between Messrs. Cockrell, McPherson, Vest and Telleras to whether these certificates were edeemable in gold.

To settle the question Mr. Teller offered a resolution, which was agreed to, calling for a formation as to whether silver dollars or ilver certificates have been redeemed or exchanged by the Treasury department for gold or paper, which, by law or practice of the government, is redeemable in gold. Mr. Cockrell said that with the act of 1859 spealed it was almost certain that no more silver bullion would be coined and there would be left in the treasury a hoard of silver metal. It seemed essential that there should be added to the pending bill an ex-press requirement to coin such bullion.

Mr. Dolph said subsequently that he understood there had been no such request or assurance.

The senate then went into executive session, after which it adjourned.

WILL PASS THE TUCKER BILL TODAY.

Democratic Caucus Declares that All Of-Tensive Provisions Must Go.
Washington, Oct. 9.—The decree of the democratic caucus at the house tonight was that the Tucker bill, repealing every vestige of the federal election laws except one statute, should be passed tomorrow. Over 140 members were present, indicating that the democrats will have a quorum tomorrow. A sentiment existed in the caucus, notably among some of the northern democrats, led by Mr. Fisch and Mr. Springer, in favor of leaving on the statute books the declaratory statutes regarding the four-teenth and fifteenth amendments on the ground that it would look bad for a democratic congress to blot out all federal election laws. Colonel Oates favored also an amendment permitting United States judges to have jurisdiction over infractions of election laws at ederal elections. It was also discovthat a stray statute, No. 5,528, not included in those to be repealed, permitted interfer-ence of troops at the polls. The general sentiment echoed by Mr. Tucker, Bourke Cockran and Patterson of Tennessee in strong speeches, was for passing the Tucker bill modified so as to include the stray No. 5,528 statue Speaker Crisp, however, called attention to the fact, owing to the peculiar parliamentary situ-ation resulting from the special order under which the house was operating.

no amendments were in order tomorrow save such as had already been offered—the substitute of Chairman Fitch and the amendments of Mr. Burrows and Lacey.
It was decided unanimously to pass the Tucker bill as it stands and have it in the senate. A resolution adopted was as follows: Resolved, That it is the sense of this cancus that the pending bill should be passed by the house of representatives tomorrow and that the democrats should present an unbroken column in its support.

that a portion of the time was given to the consideration of the probability of reaching compromise upon what the democrats in he senate could agree as a party measure. and that the various compromise plans be fore the senate in the shape of amendments to the repeal bill were discussed, as were also the state bank tax scheme and the proposition to issue bonds, but that no agreement was reached even among the senator present.

A canvass of the strength of the opposing forces is said to have been made and to have resulted in the conclusion that there are twenty-one democratic senators favorable to repeal and twenty-three opposed to it.

The situation in the senate does not appear today to have changed since Saturday, and it has become evident that there will be no development of importance until after

Cleveland and His Party in a Predicament on

Silver Legislation. WASHINGTON, Oct. 9. - [Special to The Ber.] It looks as though President Cieveland's party would soon find itself in a neep hole on both the silver and bond question. It is now conceded that the outcome of the silver contest will be an abandonment of the unconditional repeal bill or a compromise by which it will be materially modified and finally passed into law. A compromise will be a failure for the president. To abandon the measure it would ruin him politically. If he should refuse to sign a compromise measure it would operate against him, for he has said the hard times and business failures were due to the silver law, and if he refused to reduce the victousness of the law, to minituize the wrong, he would give the own statement or prove that he is not a

But the rub on the party will come when a compromise is finally agreed upon and a bond clause put into the measure. The re-peal democrats contend, as does the presi-dent and Secretary Carliste, that if there is a continuance of silver purchases, even though they are but a half of the present amount, we must increase our gold reserve in order to maintain or preserve in the least our national credit, as the silver currency will gradually wear away our gold reserve and leave us upon a poor silver basis, which would mean a depreciation of our m all European countries, if not indeed in our own country.
If there has been one thing more than another that the democratic party, the populists, the independents and anarchists, have denounced the republican party for during the past ten years it was the fact that we had a bonded debt. It has been held by all of these parties that the republicans were maintaining this bon-led in debi-edness in the interest of the mullionaires and national bankers. Every national plat-form adopted by them in many years has inverghed against the outstanding bonds. We are now confronted with a situation in which the democrats, in order to save their president from humiliation and defeat, are demanding an increase of the bonded debt, when the country will have no debts to pay with the money to be procured by the sale of the bonds. When the democrats come to answer the question why they issued bonds they will simply have to answer that it was to guard against a contingency, an emergency, which their party in congress with an overwhelming majority could not provide against directly; could not meet by direct legislation and make impossible. If the democrats would unconditionally repeal the silver pur-chasing law there would be no necessity for a bond issue, because our present gold supply would be more than sufficient to meet emergencies. The republicans have stood with the president in his efforts to secure this re-peal, but the democrats have refused to sup-port him, and so he will have to come to the few friends he has in his party and accept a bond issue. It is a terribly complicated condition of weaknesses on the part of the party in power. One can scarcely keep run of the embarrassments of this administration and the failures of the party in con-

INSURANCE MEN IN COUNCIL

Adjusters Interested in Better Fire Protection for the Business Blocks.

PRACTICAL TEST OF WATER PRESSURE

Even at Its Best the Force Was Not Fully Up to Contract-Insurance Rates May Go Higher Than the Streams.

Last Monday's fire set more than one person to thinking, as has been developed by subsequent events. Among the persons who were set to thinking were the insurance adjusters, who were considerably interested in the matter of the city's water system and fire-fighting equipment, the former having in their estimation been weighed in the balance and found wanting at the Farnam Street theatre fire. Hence the meeting yesterday afternoon at the Commercial club rooms in which about thirty in-surance adjusters took part.

The meeting was organized by the election of Francis Dana as chairman and J. A. Beck as secretary. Messra, Chris Hartman and V. O. Strickler represented the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners. Receiver Hunt of the American Water Works commany explained, the approximate Receiver Hunt of the American Water Works company explained the source of the city's water supply and the method used in Turnishing water for power, fire purposes and general supply. When asked why the power had been deficient in the Republican position. Orchard. Splyneigh and Farnam building, Orchard, Shiverick and Farnam Street theater fires, he could offer no explanation except that the force had been diminished by nose friction. At the last lire, he said, the pressure was normal about eighty-five pounds.

Chief Gaingan of the fire department was Chief Galligan of the fire department was the next witness. When asked as to the relative number of firemen employed in Omaha as compared to the force in other cities, he stated that Omaha employed about righty—me men. Kanas City about 18) and St. Paul and Minneapolis about 220 each. Omaha, however, uses the gravity system of water small, while the gravity system of water supoly, while the other cities named are dependent upon steam pressure fur-nished by their engines. As to the causes of the slight water pressure at the fire last Monday, the chief had no theory.

"How many companies each are there in the cities maned?" was asket.

"Anarythers trees."

"About thirty-two or thirty-three each in Minneapolis and St. Paul and from twenty to twenty-five in Kansas City," replied the

The matter of comparative ability in fire fighting, as concerned the cities mentioned, was then discussed, and Chief Galligan expressed the opinion that he and his department could note their own, all things consid Mr. Hariman, who opened the meeting, stated that at the meeting of the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners, held Satur-day night, he was authorized to purchase a new steam fire eagine for the use of the fire department, and had sent a telegraphic inquiry as to the probable length of time it would take to get it here, receiving the reply that it would take about four months. There is one steam fire fighter on the read now, the arrival of which is anticipated daily. Mr. Hariman stated that it was the purpose of the board to purchase still another one as soon as the funds shall be available, and that the one now in use may se exchanged for one of the pattern now favored by the board.

Gave a Practicut Test.

Before calling in Mr. Hunt, and Chief Galligan it had been agreed that a test of the available water pressure as an object lesson was in order, and accordingly the two gen-tlemen were detained in the club rooms until the adjournment. After adjourning until 7:30 o'clock, the underwriters asked the chief to show what could be be done by way of testing the water pressure, and then proceeded to the intersection of Four-teenth and Farnam, where the test was nade. A fire alarm was turned in and was promptly responded to by the de-partment, and in five minutes from the time that the marm sounced five streams were "poking holes in the atmosphere" close to the Paxton hotel. They made a pretty good showing, some of the spray cast reaching almost to a level with the top of the Paxton, but not a stream indicating a possibility of effective work above the third story—and this in the face of the suggestion, heard on all sides, that the water works company had had a "hunch" that it would be called upon to show what it could do.

Will Make a Report, in the evening the underwesters met and held a session lasting almost three hours, at which there was considerable discussion in executive session on several points involved the result being that a committee of live was finally appointed to draft a preamble and resolutions comprehending a statement of the situation and recommending a practical le way of ameliorating existing conditions after which an adjournment was taken until 7:50 o'clock tonight, at which time the report of the committee will be heard and acted upon. Owing to the fact that the Board of Fire and Police Commissioners was holding a regular session, none of its in ers were present at the evening meeting of the insurance men,

AMUSEMENTS.

After a surfeit of comedy with the usual plunge into paroxysms of mirth after a siege of the startling realisms of melodrama of the lurid brand-it is with Keene appreclation that an Omaha audience halls the legitimate drama and applauds one of the most distinguished tragedians that Amorica has given to the stage.

The lamented McCullough is cherished in sublic memory as the ideal Virginius; Booth, as the only Hamlet: Salvini as Othello had few equals and never knew a peer. Each few equals and never knew a peer. Each actor, while enjoying deserved eminence in his respective reperteirs of productions, was especially fitted to portray some particular character with such vivid reality that the master work was immediately stamped upon the memories of the arcrosers as iteal. In this respect, when Thomas W. Keene made his debut as a star some years ago and chose Richard III, as his preference, the metropolitan press and public with manimity accorded the tragedian a hearty encouragement, and the tragedian a bearty encouragement, and in two years thereafter his pre-eminence in the role was generally conceded.

The old conception of the character of the deformed and despicable Duke of Gloucester deformed and despicable Duke of Gloucester was based on the inistaken idea that tragedians had to rant around the stage, look cross-eyed at the audiense and indulge in gutteral sounds that closely resembled the "death gurgle in a bath tub."

Keepe however, imagurated a happy relief when he cast aside the typical, bent-up, hearse voiced mourreh and presented the Shakesperian role in accordance, with more shakesperian role in accordance, with more natural ideas, not only in makeup, but in compass of voice and improvement of gesture. Keene is the only Richard III, such a one as intended by the bard of Avon. From the time he draws his cripping form onto the stage, in the first act, with the expense colors of the first act, with the expense colors of the first act, with puring ecloses of classing steel on the field at bosworth, in the last scene, he holds the audience captive with his magnificent and natural portrayal of the role of the cunning villain who won a crown by butchery.

He is particularly effective in the third, fourth and sixth acis. His crafty smile and ciever portrayal of deceit in the scene with the princes and lori mayor is especially a splendid piece of acting. In fact, Keene dismanules adverse criticism in Richard III. It is his best role, and this fact is fully sub-stantiated by the large audiences that always greet him season after season in every city where the legitimate drama has
